FRAUD ALERTS

⚠️ SCAM ALERT ⚠️

These scam messages are being sent claiming unpaid tickets and traffic violations. The message looks realistic and even provides a QR code for you to scan and pay.

If you receive this message, DO NOT scan the QR code or send any payments! Florida Courts will never request money via a text message or a QR Code.

We advise citizens never to give personal information or account information over the phone and call law enforcement immediately to report suspicious activity.

FRAUD ALERTS

From Chase Bank

Watch out for scammers on social media

Scammers create listings on social media marketplaces offering merchandise at great prices. They'll often ask you to pay with Zelle®, checks, wires and crypto. In the end, they disappear — taking your money with them.

How it can happen:

I thought I'd hit the jackpot

I really didn't believe I could be so lucky when I saw a marketplace listing for the exact phone I'd been looking for. It was brand new and the price was so low, I thought it might be a scam. But when I messaged the seller, they told me it was an unwanted gift and they just wanted to get rid of it quickly. They even sent me pictures of the unopened box.

I felt a little uneasy when they made excuses about why they couldn't meet in person and insisted that Zelle® would be the easiest and quickest way to make the payment. They reassured me they'd ship it as soon as they got the money. The deal was so good and I didn't want to miss out, so I sent it.

I waited for weeks, but the phone never showed up. The seller had disappeared.

I wish I'd known:

- Zelle® is for family, friends and businesses you know and trust, not for marketplace strangers.
- Treat Zelle®, checks, wires, cashier's checks, transfers, gift cards and crypto like cash. Once scammers get the money, you probably won't get it back.

Scammers are advertising on social media and social marketplaces. Whenever possible, shop through official websites and be cautious of deals that seem too good to be true before sending any money.

Additional tip:

- Scammers can make caller ID, emails and texts display as messages from your bank or other businesses. If you are ever unsure, end the conversation and reach out to the company directly through their official website.

FRAUD ALERTS

Watch out for the latest tech support and computer virus scams

Scammers pretend to be tech support from a well-known company. They either call, text or try to trick you into clicking on a link in an email, text or pop-up window, claiming there's a problem with your computer like a virus or a billing issue. To fix it, you inadvertently give them remote access to your computer.

How it can happen:

I got a giant yellow “alert” that covered my computer screen, saying my computer had been hacked. My cursor was even moving on its own, so something definitely seemed wrong. Another alert appeared that looked legitimately from the same brand as my computer, telling me to call the tech support line.

The man who answered was very professional and said they'd been seeing this attack happening a lot lately. He had me go to a website that had all sorts of cyber security information on it and click on a link. He said it would let him see my screen to gauge how bad the attack was. He had me sign into some unimportant websites like a movie site and my pet store. He said everything looked fine, but I should sign into my bank account to also check it. He said he couldn't see my password as it showed up with just those dots in the password field. I told him there were no unusual transactions on my account, so he said it looked like it was all a false alarm and hung up.

Little did I know, that when I gave him remote access to my computer, he was able to see everything I typed. The scammers later signed into my bank account and transferred thousands out.

Help protect yourself

Scammers know “virus alerts” immediately put computer users into a panic. Never click on virus alerts, even if they look like they come from your computer company or an anti-virus protection company. If you think your computer was impacted, talk to a local reputable service provider.

FRAUD ALERTS

Before you send money or give information

Please call a friendly Largo Police dispatcher or officer on the non-emergency line 727-587-6730.

Many times we hear people say, “we don’t want to bother the police” and do not call us.

WE WANT YOU TO CALL BEFORE YOU ARE SCAMMED!

A dispatcher or officer can help you identify if you are being scammed. If the caller tells you not to call the police, they are a scammer. No legitimate business or government agency will tell you not to call the local police.

Stop, take a breath, give us a call to save your money and personal information.
